

The mitochondrion contains its own internal machinery for the well-known process of respiration.